

Photos taken from Tony Konavaloff's Workshop.

Left: I can cut 'em with my eyes shut!

Right: Sawing pins and tails.

Right: Fine tuning by paring with a chisel.

Bottom: The finished product! Darn good for not having cut any dovetails for a year!

A few things to be learned from the photos. Notice Tony's intense concentration and working postures. Also, dovetails can be cut on a Workmate! Lastly, Gary Holloman still does not have a woodworking vise in a professional shop!
